FRE 6946 Internship in French

Course Description:

Graduate students enrolled in the French MAT program are required to do an internship with a faculty member teaching one of several undergraduate major courses: FRW 3001 (Introduction à la littérature française), FRE 3393 (Culture et Société: Le Cinéma), or FRE 3400 / FRE 3401 (either Advanced French I or Advanced French II, both of which focus on composition and expository technique). The student shadows the professor in the course, and completes specific course-related activities.

Course Objectives:

The main objective of the internship is to give graduate students enrolled in the French MAT program sustained professional mentoring in a hands-on classroom environment. In order to accommodate students with varying professional interests, students are given a choice: they may do an internship that focuses on the study of literature (in conjunction with FRW 3001), the study of culture through film (in conjunction with FRE 3393), or the study of advanced composition and expository techniques (in conjunction with FRE 3400 or FRE 3401). The student must have the explicit permission of the professor teaching the course before enrolling in the internship, and ideally the student will have taken the course her- or himself (although this is not strictly necessary). Final decisions as to which undergraduate course the internship will be focused on rest with the French faculty.

Grading Scale:

A = 93-100 / A- = 90-92 / B+ = 87-89 / B = 83-86 / B- = 80-82 / C+ = 77-79 / C = 73-76 C- = 70-72 / D+ = 68-69 / D = 63-68 / D- = 60-62 / F = below 60

Evaluation:

The final grade for the internship will be based on the following factors:

1. Attendance and meaningful participation. (20%) Each internship student must attend every undergraduate class session and be prepared to: (a) take notes on the pedagogical strategies being used by the professor; (b) assist the undergraduate students during group oral activities; and (c) help generate lively in-class discussion when requested by the professor (while nevertheless keeping in mind that the focus of the class must remain on the undergraduate students). This means, of course, that the student must be familiar with the material being presented in class each day.

2. Sample teaching demonstrations. (30%) Over the course of the semester the student will be given the responsibility of leading the entire class on guided topics. At three points during the semester student will take over the role of the professor for anywhere from 20 to 40 minutes in order to introduce a topic, lead students in practice activities, and then conduct a follow-up exercise. The professor will observe each teaching demonstration and immediately afterwards give the student guided feedback indicating what aspects of the pedagogy were strong, and what areas could be improved. The topic of the presentation will be determined beforehand in consultation with the professor.

3. Pedagogical journal. (20%) Over the course of the semester the student will keep a regular journal detailing her/his in-class observations (of the professor's pedagogical techniques, chosen topics, and student reaction). The journal is intended to give students the chance to reflect often and in-depth on pedagogical topics, as well as maintain an ongoing dialogue with the professor on the course. In tandem with the journal, the professor will assign selected pedagogical readings.

4. Guided evaluation and correction of exams and other coursework. (10%) A fundamental element of the internship is the chance for the student to discuss exams and other coursework with the professor. Although the professor will be solely responsible for developing course evaluation tools, the student will nevertheless be expected to engage in dialogue with the professor about the structure of quizzes and other exams, and may be asked to design limited portions of a particular exam. As a correlative activity, students will also be responsible for discussing the evaluation of exams and other course activities with the professor. In the case of longer essay responses or term papers, the student will be asked to provide an initial evaluation of the student work (in pencil!), and the professor will be responsible for the final evaluation. In those cases where the professor's evaluation differs significantly from the student's, the professor will use this as an opportunity to explain to the student why s/he assigned a particular grade, and what specific elements in the work s/he was responding to. Similar to "norming" in composition, this is an extremely valuable opportunity for both student and professor.

5. Final project. (20%) The student, in consultation with the professor, will present a final project (to the professor, not to the entire undergraduate class). The project may take one of several forms. Possible forms include, but are not limited to: (a) a formal academic essay describing the various strategies one could use to teach a particular cultural/compositional/literary topic; (b) a series of detailed class exercises, using electronic and/or forms of social media (note: all materials must be fully developed if the student chooses this option); (c) a detailed class syllabus for a course that the student would like to teach one day (including a bibliography of resources used to compile the syllabus).

Attached to this course description are two sample course syllabi from the various undergraduate courses in which a student might shadow a professor.

Description du cours:

Ce cours vise à donner aux étudiants de spécialisation française une introduction de base aux trois genres fondamentaux: la poésie, la prose et le théâtre. On apprend le vocabulaire approprié à chaque genre avant de faire une exploration du genre à travers une variété de textes provenant de toute période littéraire. Au cours du semestre on fera une analyse textuelle détaillée (une explication de texte) en se servant de la terminologie appropriée au genre. Il y aura aussi deux quizzes, des devoirs écrits, un journal de lecture, une présentation orale (de 5 minutes), et un examen final.

This course serves as a basic introduction to the three main genres of literature: poetry, prose, and theater. We will first learn the appropriate French terminology needed to discuss and analyze each genre; after mastering this terminology we will study the read a variety of texts of each genre in order to gain a broad understanding of French literary history. The course is divided into three modules: poetry, prose and theater. During each module, all students will do both creative projects AND close textual analysis using the terminology learned in class. There will be two quizzes, a writing journal, an oral presentation (5 min. max!), and a final exam.

Annotation: La note sera basée sur les éléments suivants:

Quizzes (2)	24%
Explications de texte (2)	25%
Journal de lecture	6%
Devoirs écrits	10%
Scène à jouer	5%
Présentation orale	5%
Participation orale	5%

RAPPEL: EXAMEN FINAL (mercredi 8 décembre : 10h30 – 13h) = 20%

SYLLABUS

*Please note: This syllabus should be considered a general outline of the assignments to be done for this course. Homework assignments may from time to time be altered to fit the pace and the needs of our class. Therefore, it is the responsibility of each student to check Blackboard each night for updates to course schedules and assignments. Also, please note: if you must miss a class, it is your responsibility to contact me as soon as possible (preferably before class begins), and also to check Blackboard to find out what assignment(s) are due. NOTE: We will be using Blackboard 9, which is not yet available to the entire university. Please go to <http://bb9.fau.edu> to find our class blackboard site.

Assignments are listed for the day they are due.

Students with Disabilities

In compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), students who require special accommodations due to a disability to properly execute coursework must register with the Office for Students with Disabilities (OSD) located in Boca Raton –SU 133 (561-297- 3880), in Davie, MOD I (954- 236-1222), in Jupiter- SR 117 (561-799-8585), or at the Treasure Coast – CO 128 (772- 873- 3305) and follow all OSD procedures.

Plagiarism

Students at Florida Atlantic University are expected to maintain the highest ethical standards. Academic dishonesty, including cheating and plagiarism, is considered a serious breach of these ethical standards, because it interferes with the University mission to provide a high quality education in which no student enjoys an unfair advantage over any other. Academic dishonesty is also destructive of the University community, which is grounded in a system of mutual trust and places high value on personal integrity and individual responsibility. Harsh penalties are associated with academic dishonesty. For more information, see:

Course Description

This course is designed to provide students with an opportunity to improve their conversational and writing skills in French through the viewing, discussion and analysis of a number of French and Francophone films. Students will get to learn about, reflect on, and discuss a variety of cultural objects, social situations, as well as political and historical moments as they are (re)presented in the films they will watch. Strong emphasis is placed on the examination of the multiple ways in which these themes have shaped the image of modern France and helped to the construction of its national identity. Class discussions will be entirely conducted in French; discussions are designed to offer students a venue in which they can learn more, or improve their knowledge of cinematographic vocabulary and filmic analysis. Discussions are also designed to help students learn to move from being mere consumers of films to active readers and producers of meaning and (critical) interpretation. Class is entirely conducted in French and homework is required to be completed in French as well. Subtitles in English are available.

Course Objectives

- Improve your knowledge of French vocabulary, grammar, and idioms.
- Introduce you to or sharpen your analytical cinematic reading and interpreting skills in French.
- Improve your argumentative skills and the ways you express your opinions and communicate them
- Help you learn more about contemporary, cultural and historical issues raised in the films through class discussion and research assignments.
- Improve and/or enhance your knowledge of multimedia technology and web resources.

Textbook:

- Rice, Anne-Christine. Cinema For French Conversation. Le Cinéma en cours de français. 3rd Edition. Focus Publishing : Newburyport, 2007.

- A good Dictionary (Larousse or Le Petit Robert)
- Short Stories and additional readings (Blackboard)

Class Policies:

Attendance:

- Class meets 2 times a week: attendance is mandatory. If a student is absent due to an emergency such an illness or death in the family, he/she will be excused only with a written excuse.
- There is nothing such an excused absence. Students are allowed two absences, after which absences their attendance grade will drop by a letter grade for each absence.

Homework:

- If the student is absent for any reason, he/she will be responsible for turning in his/her homework on time. He/she will be responsible also for the material covered in class (Check blackboard, get in touch with friends, email instructor, check syllabus).
- Students are expected to read, view films and complete their assignments for the date indicated prior to coming to class (syllabus / blackboard calendar). Homework should be completed on time. No Late homework will be accepted.
- All essays are due on time. NO late or incomplete essay will be accepted.

Participation:

- Participation is crucial in this class since it is structured around students' input. Students are required to come prepared and to actively participate to debates in class.

Oral Presentation (10%)

Each student will give an individual 10-15 minute class presentation in French on an assigned topic related to the film that will be studied in class. Students are encouraged to use visual aids (posters, film clips, power points...) and prepare hand outs. Group presentations are to be discussed with me ahead of time.

Students are encouraged to discuss the presentation with me at least one day before it is scheduled. Oral presentations cannot be rescheduled.

Students with Disabilities

- In compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), students who require special accommodations due to a disability to properly execute coursework must register with the Office for Students with Disabilities (OSD) located in Boca Raton –SU 133 (561-297- 3880), in Davie, MOD I (954- 236-1222), in Jupiter- SR 117 (561-799-8585), or at the Treasure Coast – CO 128 (772- 873- 3305) and follow all OSD procedures.
