SYLLABUS

Most of the readings for this class will be posted on Blackboard.

Course Description: This class will explore the interconnectedness between gender, class, and, to a lesser extent, race. The women we will discuss have wealth and agency. Nevertheless, gender mitigates their actions and is embedded in the arrangement of households and other institutions. By studying women of wealth, we learn from their voices about the tenacity of gender proscriptions and the strategies employed to assert their agency and independence. The course is divided into three sections: I. The Sociology of Money, II. Women among the Elite, and III. Diversity among Women of Wealth.

Course Context: This is a 4000-level course. It requires that you have taken three sociology courses at the 1000, 2000 or 3000-level or that you have the permission of the instructor. It can be counted towards the sociology major or minor.

Course Objectives: 1. Understand the characteristics of the elite class
2. Understand the conflicting positions of elite women
3. Recognize the distinctions among elite women according to color, ethnicity, and historical circumstances

Grading: Your grade will depend on your performance on three exams, a group project, and your reading’s report. The exams will cover material from the classroom, including the presentations, and the assigned readings.

Exam #1 Thursday, September 17 250 points
Exam #2 Thursday, October 22 250 points

In compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), students who require special accommodation due to a disability to properly execute course work must register with the Office for Students with Disabilities (OSD) -- in Boca Raton, SU 133 (561-297-3880); in Davie, MOD 1 (954-236-1222); in Jupiter, SR 117 (561-799-8585); or at the Treasure Coast, CO 128 (772-873-3305) – and follow all OSD procedures.

Exams: 250 points each
- The exams will be multiple-choice
- You will need a blue scantron for the exam.
- Prior to the exam, you will receive (via Blackboard) a study guide
- The questions will come equally from the readings and the classroom lectures and presentations.
- No electronic devices (e.g., cell phones, laptops, pagers, iPods, IPads, Ianything, etc) are allowed on your desk or visible during the exams.
- There is a zero tolerance policy toward cheaters. I am usually a kind, mild-mannered person. Please do not test my patience by even appearing to cheat. Also, the person next to you will have a different exam, so cheating may be futile!

Group Project: 100 points Please read these instructions carefully.
Each student is required to participate in an assigned group project. By August 27, I will have posted the assigned groups on BLACKBOARD. Each group will focus on a biography of an elite woman. If you wish to exchange with another student, both students must send an email to me agreeing on the change. There will be four-to-five students in each group.

The information on the group projects is very specific. My intention is to facilitate your work on the project. In my experience, students’ work improves with increased guidance from the professor. I will allocate some class time for the groups to meet.

The project will have two parts – a class presentation and a written paper.
1. Class presentation:
- Each group will have about 15-20 minutes to deliver their presentation.
- The presentations should include visual aids and/or hand-outs.
- The presentation should include the following information:
  - A family tree for distribution to the class (There are about 35 students enrolled in the class).
  - Background information on the source of the woman’s wealth
  - A brief biography
Most importantly, the presentations should inform the class about the significance of gender in directing the woman’s life.

- You should react to the following:
  - Historian Gerda Lerner contends that the connection between class and gender is best understood “by comparing each woman with her brother and considering how the sister’s and brother’s lives and opportunities would differ.”
  - While your topic may not have a “brother,” you can discuss the woman’s life relative to her male peers

- The presentations should be interesting and creative.

2. Written Paper:
   - Each group will submit one paper.
   - I have divided the responsibilities for the paper into five areas. Each student will be responsible for one of the areas:
     - The group leader will:
       - Coordinate the work of the group.
       - Prepare the presentation based upon material given to the leader by other group members.
       - Write the one-page introduction and one-page conclusion.
       - Prepare the hand-outs for the presentation and coordinate the visuals.
       - Compile the paper.
       - Distribute the power point presentation to the class at least 24 hours before the scheduled presentation.
       - Submit the paper on Turnitin on Blackboard.
       - Submit a hard-copy, including the power point slides.
     - The biographer will
       - Prepare the family tree.
       - Write three pages describing the woman’s life, including the source of her wealth.
     - The gender person will
       - Write three pages focused on the connection between wealth and gender.
       - Part of this section will be a generic discussion of the issue and part will connect it to the specific person.
     - There will be one-to-two students in each group who will discuss a specific topic from the following:
       - Sociology of inheritance
       - Issues of diversity
       - Philanthropy
       - Write three pages describing the connection between the woman’s life and the selected issue.

Process:

September 1 I will discuss the group projects and give students an opportunity to meet their group members and exchange emails and phone numbers. You will have time during class to divide the responsibilities within your group according to the four categories outlined above.

Evaluation:

Each student will receive an individual grade, depending on their contribution to the project and their written work. I will post a rubric that will serve as a guide.

Class Presentations:
- I will evaluate the presentations based on the following criteria:
  - Was it well-organized?
  - Did it expand our knowledge about women and wealth?
  - Did it address the issues of class and gender?
  - Was it interesting and engaging?

Written Paper: The papers are due two weeks following the scheduled presentation.
I will evaluate the written paper based on the following criteria:
- Was it well-organized?
- Did the writers connect the readings and/or lectures to their topic? VERY IMPORTANT (failure to connect the paper to readings and/or lectures will result in a maximum grade of 70)
- Did the paper complete the assigned tasks?
- Did the student acknowledge material they received from other sources? (REALLY, REALLY IMPORTANT)
- Was the paper grammatically accurate?
  - I will deduct two points for every misspelled word and gross grammatical errors.
  - Never submit a paper without using your grammar and spell check!

- The paper should have the following format:
  - Title Page
    - Each student’s name should be listed along with their specific responsibility.
      - E.g., Doris Duke
      - By
      - Sarah Jones Group Leader
      - Jason Smith Biographer
      - José Martinez Topic
      - Amy Jenkins Topic
      - Jennifer Washington Gender
  - Each section should be clearly divided according to topic
  - The papers must be typed, double-spaced, 12 font, Times New Roman.
  - All papers must include a bibliography combining the citations from each group member
    - In order to facilitate this process, each person should submit their three pages to the group leader in Word no later than two days prior to the paper’s due date.
    - The leader should list the citations at the end of each section

  - It is imperative that you cite your sources either
    - when you receive an idea from the source,
    - or when you use a direct quote.
    - Failure to do so is plagiarism, a serious academic infraction.
  - The group leader must submit the final paper through Turnitin, which will be available under “Assignments” on Blackboard.
    - The group leader is also responsible for submitting a hard copy of the paper, along with a copy of the power point presentation, to the wonderful professor on the date it is due.
Readings Report: 25 points

In order to facilitate classroom discussion, you should have read the articles and be prepared to discuss them by the dates listed. On August 27, I will post the names of students responsible for answering the questions associated with the article. (The questions will be posted on Blackboard. While everyone is responsible for completing the readings according to schedule, the students selected for each reading will be asked directly to respond to the questions). You do not have to submit your answers, just be prepared to reply when called upon.
Other important stuff:
- Class begins at 2pm and is scheduled to last until 3:20pm. Please plan on arriving on-time and remaining through the entire class. Tardiness is disruptive for your fellow students and is not looked upon kindly by your gentle professor.
- You should keep up with the readings. Copies of the assigned articles will be available on Blackboard.
- All cell phones must be turned off during class time. Students should keep their cell phones in their backpacks, pockets, or other places out of sight. You should NOT be texting during class.
- I am reluctantly going to allow you to use a laptop for note taking. However, that privilege MAY be removed if anyone is using their computer for other activities during class time (e.g., facebook, ebay, email, etc.). Please do not abuse this privilege! Students using a laptop for note taking must sit in the front row.
- Your grade will be affected according to your attendance record. Attendance is mandatory. Students who do not attend regularly may have their grade lowered. However in accord with university policy, absence from class will be excused for reasons that include religious observances, required and documented participation in a university-sponsored activity (such as athletic competition) and certain documented civic and military obligations.
- Make-up exams will be given only with an excused absence and only if your wonderful professor is notified before the scheduled exam.

CODE OF ACADEMIC INTEGRITY POLICY ******

Students at Florida Atlantic University are expected to maintain the highest ethical standards. Academic dishonesty is considered a serious breach of these ethical standards, because it interferes with the University mission to provide a high quality education in which no student enjoys an unfair advantage over any other. Academic dishonesty is also destructive of the University community, which is grounded in a system of mutual trust and places high value on personal integrity and individual responsibility. Harsh penalties are associated with academic dishonesty.

The FAU Code of Academic Integrity prohibits dishonesty and requires a faculty member, student, or staff member to notify an instructor when there is reason to believe dishonesty has occurred in a course/program requirement. The instructor must pursue any reasonable allegation, taking action where appropriate. Examples of academic dishonesty include, but are not limited to, the following:
I. Cheating
   a. The unauthorized use of notes, books, electronic devices, or other study aids while taking an examination or working on an assignment.
   b. Providing unauthorized assistance to or receiving assistance from another student during an examination or while working on an assignment.
   c. Having someone take an exam or complete an assignment in one’s place.
   d. Securing an exam, receiving an unauthorized copy of an exam, or sharing a copy of an exam.

II. Plagiarism
   a. The presentation of words from any other source or another person as one’s own without proper quotation and citation.
   b. Putting someone else’s ideas or facts into your own words (paraphrasing) without proper citation.
   c. Turning in someone else’s work as one’s own, including the buying and selling of term papers or assignments.

III. Other Forms of Dishonesty
   a. Falsifying or inventing information, data, or citations.
   b. Failing to comply with examination regulations or failing to obey the instructions of an examination proctor.
   c. Submitting the same paper or assignment, or part thereof, in more than one class without the written consent of both instructors.
   d. Any other form of academic cheating, plagiarism, or dishonesty

For more information, see the Code of Academic Integrity in the University Regulations at http://www.fau.edu/regulations/chapter4/4.001_Code_of_Academic_Integrity.pdf.
