

Study in New York City

The New York City studio art course offers students the unique opportunity to explore and engage in the New York City contemporary art world through gallery and museum field trips, guest lectures by leading curators /gallerist, and artists' studio visits. Students will conduct their own creative research in private studio spaces or study rooms provided for each student in Chelsea, a major gallery area in the city. New York City will also provide challenging questions about contemporary art and enhance the course's dialogue concerning the role the art world plays in contemporary culture.

The capstone event for the course is a group exhibition in a Chelsea gallery at the end of the course. All students will participate in this exhibition, showing the work they created while in New York City.
