The Blood of Strangers: Stories from Emergency Medicine - Public Lecture by Frank Huyler

Friday, September 2, 2011, 1:00-1:50PM
MacArthur Campus, AD Auditorium

Hailed by The Boston Globe as "a compact, faceted gem that shines with intelligence," this stunning collection offers a startling and moving look at people whose lives are on the line and the men and women who try to keep them from crossing it. These twenty-eight vignettes seamlessly juxtapose visceral portrayals of life-and-death medical situations with lyrical meditations on the world of medicine and the world at large.

This haunting, exquisitely observed collection of medical vignettes is much more than a compilation of odd cases from the emergency room. Huyler probes beneath the surface to reveal the marrow of his encounters with patients...[inviting] the reader behind the drape.
