V. Group Discussion of Dissertation Submission Process

The process for the review of dissertations and final approval was discussed. It was discussed if the process of the review that occurs at the Dean’s office level can be shared with the graduate student who is submitting the dissertation, faculty serving on the committee, and the department chair. A discussion of whether dissertations are read for content or grammar and punctuation ensued. Some GPC members prefer that entire document be read when reviewed rather than stopping after so many errors and sending back to the department. Ultimately, it is the committee members’ responsibility to make sure the dissertation is submitted correctly. Everyone who signs for the dissertation as completed must be allowed to review the document thoroughly. The discussion was ended due to time constraints and other meetings.

VI. Meeting Adjourned by Deborah L. Floyd at 2:30pm.

VII. Next GPC meeting will be announced for Fall 2010.
