Federal Regulations require the maximum annual Federal Stafford Loan amount an undergraduate student may borrow to be prorated in cases where it is known that the student's remaining period of study will consist of only 1 semester in the academic year. The prorated amount the student may borrow in this final semester is based a ratio of the number of credits enrolled divided by 24. This quotient is then multiplied by the student's annual loan limit (based on dependency status) to determine the maximum the student may borrow in their final term of undergraduate study.

You have been identified as an FAU undergraduate student with a remaining period of study consisting of only 1 semester in the 2009-2010 academic year. Given these circumstances, Federal Regulations require your Federal Stafford Loan eligibility to be prorated based on your enrollment after drop/add expires. If you are not attending full time, this likely will result in a reduction in your Federal Stafford Loan eligibility from what you have been previously offered.

IMPORTANT NOTE

If you have applied for graduation in error and your remaining period of study will consist of at least 2 semesters in the 2009-2010 academic year, you will be considered exempt from loan proration after you complete the following steps:

1. Formerly withdraw your graduation application with your college.
2. Notify the Office of Student Financial Aid of your revised anticipated graduation in writing by submitting this form.

You must also notify the Office of Student Financial Aid of the total amount of Federal Stafford Loans you are requesting to receive by completing page 2 of this form.

If, after being granted an exemption from Federal Stafford Loan proration, it is later found that you have re-submitted your application for degree and have a remaining period of study consisting of only 1 semester in the academic year, your loan eligibility will be retroactively prorated in accordance with the policy above. In cases where loan funds have been disbursed in excess of the your prorated eligibility, you will be billed for loan disbursements made which exceed your prorated eligibility. The charges resulting from this billing will prohibit the you from receiving your diploma or academic transcript until they are paid.

Annual Stafford Loan Limits

The Federal Stafford Loan Annual Borrowing Limits listed below represent the most a student may borrow through the Federal Stafford Loan program in an award year (defined as the enrollment period spanning from the beginning of Fall to the end of the following Summer). These limits vary depending on the student's grade level and dependency status. In addition to the limits listed below, Federal Stafford Loan eligibility is also restricted by the student's Cost of Attendance, Financial Need, and Aggregate Limit calculations. In cases where the parent of a dependent student is denied approval from their lender to borrow from the Federal PLUS loan program, the dependent student may be allowed to borrow at independent student loan limits for their corresponding grade level.
