

University Residence Rêsidencia Universitária

With the University Residence Professor José Pinto Peixoto, the Lisbon University Institute (ISCTE) meets some of the accommodation needs of its visiting students and teachers which so far have only been served through the room and private house market across Lisbon and the UTL Social Services.

Located in the Monastery of Santos-o-Novo (17th century) - which is classified as a National Monument, on a small hill by the river Tagus, in Lisbon's east end, the residence benefits from a privileged view and is a short distance from the central railway station of Santa Apolónia, the typical neighborhood of Alfama, downtown Lisbon, Terreiro do Paço, and also close to the new residential, commercial and service area of the Parque das Nações.

The residence enables us to provide a quality response which is hoped to be improved even further over time as it is adapted to the needs expressed by future users. The space is centralized in one building and permits new relations to be built thereby enriching future academic and professional life.
