A brief introduction to XMU

Xiamen University (XMU), established in 1921 by Tan Kah Kee, a well-known patriotic overseas Chinese leader, was the first Chinese university founded by an overseas Chinese. It is the only university that enjoys the privileged support from both the "211 Project" and the "985 Project" in China's Special Economic Zones. (The "211 Project" is a national project ensuring that the best 100 universities in China receive preferential financial support in the 21st century, and the "985 Project" aims to contribute to the elevation of major Chinese universities to the status of world-class universities.)

XMU is recognized as a first-class national university with an international reputation as a centre of excellence and ranks among the top 20 of over 2,000 universities and colleges in China. XMU campuses are situated around the Xiamen Bay, opposite Taiwan across the Taiwan Strait, commanding a beautiful view of green hills and the blue sea. It boasts the most beautiful campuses in China, even in Asia.

XMU has a graduate school and 26 schools and colleges consisting of 66 departments, as well as over 150 research institutes. The university offers 185 PhD programmes, 279 master programmes, and 83 undergraduate programmes. Currently, there are almost 40,000 full-time students, including over 2,500 international students. Since its founding in 1921, XMU has produced more than 200,000 graduates, and over 60 academicians of the Chinese Academy of Sciences and the Chinese Academy of Engineering have studied or worked at XMU.

XMU has a highly professional faculty of 2,536, who have been attracted to Xiamen from across as well as outside China. Currently, professors and researchers with doctorates obtained from overseas universities are playing an increasingly important role in the enhancement of XMU teaching and research quality.

On the newly built Xiang'an campus, there will be XMU High-tech Innovation Incubator Centre, the Southern Base for the International Promotion of the Chinese language, School of Life Sciences, Medical School, School of Pharmaceutical Sciences, School of Public Health, College of Oceanography and Earth Sciences, College of Environment and Ecology, and Institute of Energy Research. XMU persists in creating an atmosphere and environment conducive to learning and research.

In recent years, XMU has prided itself on its remarkable scientific and research achievements, having landed, between 2006 and 2011, over 700 grants at the national level and published 16 research reports in top international high-level scientific journals, such as Science, Nature, Cancer Cell, the Lancet, etc. XMU has an exceptional team for research on the humanities and social sciences, leading the nation in such fields as Taiwan studies, Southeast Asian studies, economic studies, and accounting studies.

As one of the earliest institutions in China to run courses for overseas students, XMU has been actively engaged in cultural exchanges between China and the west. In 1956, XMU set up its Overseas Correspondence College, later renamed the Overseas Education College, and in 1981 it started to enrol resident international students. To date, close to 40,000 international students from over 100 nations and regions have studied at XMU.

In recent years, XMU has increasingly become internationalized, having established cooperative and collaborative ties with over 170 overseas universities in countries like the USA, the UK, Japan, France, Russia, etc, and regions such as HK, Taiwan and Macao. It has also formed a multi-lateral cooperative relationship with other universities around the world, with the signing of the Agreement on the Global University 8 Consortium. XMU has set up 15 Confucius Institutes around the world which play an important role in promoting cultural exchanges between China and the rest of the world.

XMU has sent hundreds of scholars and teachers abroad to engage in joint research projects, participate in advanced study programmes and attend conferences. Since 1980, several thousand foreign experts have been invited to teach, give lectures and do research at XMU. It has hosted hundreds of international or regional academic conferences. A number of world-renowned scientists and scholars, including Nobel laureates Chen-Ning Yang and Tsung Dao Lee, have been awarded XMU honorary or visiting professorship.

Xiamen, a charming city

Xiamen is a modern metropolis by the beautiful Xiamen Bay, a city with the most homey ambience in southeast China. It is one of the five Special Economic Zones in China, opposite Taiwan across the Taiwan Strait.

Xiamen, an island of green hills and beautiful gardens, enjoys mild, pleasant sub-tropical climate characterized by warm winter and cool summer, with an average annual temperature of 21°C. Xiamen has been awarded such honours as "UN Habitat Scroll of Honour Award", "Nations in Bloom City" and "China's Best Tourist City". Former US President Richard Nixon once called Xiamen an "Oriental Hawaii".

Xiamen was one of the five treaty ports in the 19th Century in China, and the consequent integration of the indigenous Southern Fujian (Minnan) Culture with western cultures has resulted in a unique cityscape. The simple and honest way of life and delightful living environment have made Xiamen one of the world's best places to live, study and work.

Xiamen was one of China's first Special Economic Zones open to the world, and every year on September 8th, the China International Fair for Investment and Trade under the aegis of the Ministry of Commerce, is held in Xiamen and attracts thousands of participants from around the world who come to invest and do business in China.

Xiamen not only has extensive cultural and recreational facilities such as parks, concert halls, museums, exhibition centres, sports centres and golf courses, but it also distinguishes itself by its unique ways of celebrating various traditional festivals and hosting a variety of cultural activities. The annual Xiamen International Marathon in January attracts runners from all over the world.

Xiamen International Airport, which is only 15 minutes by taxi from XMU, is an important air-transport hub for South and East China, operating 167 air routes to 84 cities on the Chinese mainland, as well as to metropolises of Taipei, Hong Kong, Macau, Tokyo, Osaka, Seoul, Kuala Lumpur, Singapore, Manila, Jakarta, Bangkok, etc. It has rail links with every major city across China, including Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Xi'an. Bullet trains from Xiamen enable you to travel fast and comfortably to Fuzhou, Whenzhou, Hangzhou and Shanghai.

SUMMER SCHOOL ON EMERGING ENVIRONMENTAL PROBLEMS AND RISK ASSESSMENT
BACKGROUND

The Summer School series on Environmental Science is jointly organized by Xiamen University, City University of Hong Kong, San Diego State University and Peking University. The Summer School is designed not only for university postgraduate students but it is also relevant and applicable for professionals working in the area of marine and environmental science.

The State Key Lab of Marine Environmental Science (MEL) has organized several summer schools with its partner institutions in previous years which were well attended by over 300 participants and very encouraging feedback was received. The themes of previous summer schools were “EIA and Ecotoxicology” in 2008, “EIA and Eutrophication (HAB)” in 2009 and “Multidisciplinary Research of Geo-Bio-Chemical Interactions in the Ocean and at the Seafloor” in 2011. This year we continue our mission to provide participants with quality learning, key concepts and current update in various aspects of environmental science. We are looking forward to seeing you in Xiamen this July.

INTRODUCTION TO MEL

Established in March 2005, MEL is sponsored by the Ministry of Science and Technology (MOST). It was categorized as class ‘A’ by MOST in 2010 during a nationwide review among state key labs in earth science. MEL is dedicated to cutting-edge research on global change. Emphasizing fundamental and interdisciplinary research, and utilizing technological innovation, MEL’s focus is on marine biogeochemistry and its interactions with the marine ecosystem. The ultimate goal of MEL is to be an internationally recognized institution in advanced marine environmental science and a platform for talents fostering and academic cooperation.

An Introduction to CFLC

The College of Foreign Languages and Cultures (CFLC) was founded in September, 1999, and is currently composed of the Department of English Language and Literature, the Department of Japanese Language and Literature, the Department of French Language and Literature, the Department of European Languages and Literatures and the College English Department. The College offers 5 undergraduate programs (English, Japanese, French, Russian and German), 1 first-level MA program (including English, Japanese, French, Russian, Foreign Linguistics & Applied Linguistics), 1 PhD program (English). Currently, CFLC has the Research Institute of Foreign Languages and Literatures, the Research Center of Japanese Language Education, the Research Institute of Bilingual Lexicography and Language & Culture, the Research Institute of European Studies, and 4 Foreign Language Test Centers and training centers.

At present, CFLC has a teaching and administrative staff of approximately 150, including 16 professors, 48 associate professors and 40 international scholars. CFLC has 1440 students, among whom 29 PhD students, 403 MA students and 1008 undergraduates. Besides, CFLC teaches English to non-English-majors to 13500 students in other colleges of the University.

The college has achieved a lot in research. From 2001 to 2007, the teaching staff of the college published 667 articles and 194 works. 18 of them won prizes at the provincial level or above. Now, the college is undertaking 4 state-funded research projects and 41 projects funded by the province and other organizations.

CFLC has been expanding academic cooperation and exchange with other colleges and universities both at home and abroad. It has had corporation with universities in the UK, France, Japan and Russia, practicing the models of “3 plus 1” for undergraduate students (i.e. 3 years in CFLC and 1 year abroad) and “2 plus 1” for postgraduate students (i.e. 2 years in CFLC and 1 year abroad).

In recent years, students in CFLC have done exceptionally well in all the nationwide foreign language proficiency tests. Graduates have always been welcomed by their employers in all parts of China, and played an important role in government institutions, schools, banks, state-own enterprises, joint ventures and foreign corporations.
