FAUchange—Revised September 2012
FRW 6938 Seminar in French and Francophone Literature
France in Algeria, France and Algeria:
(Contested) History, Conflictive Memor(y/ies), Literature and Culture

Course description
The Algerian War of Liberation remains one of the most important wars of colonial independence in modern history. Between 1954 and 1962, the Republic of France engaged in a massive military campaign aimed at retaining control of Algeria, one of its most prized colonial possessions. During this extended struggle and in its immediate aftermath, more than two million French soldiers were dispatched to Algeria, hundreds of thousands of Algerians died, and a million European colonists, widely known as pieds-noirs, were forced to leave a land where they had lived for generations. However, despite the fact that the Algerian war of independence produced traumatic and lasting effects for populations on both sides of the Mediterranean, for decades, memory of this cataclysmic event was vigilantly repressed in cultural and political life. This course is designed to explore the history of France in/and Algeria since 1830 when the French first invaded Algiers. Through novels, memoir, essays, graphic novels and films we will examine the evolution of the representation of Algeria in France, we will also try to explore the reasons that led to the suppression of this chapter of history for almost three decades in France. We will compare and contrast French and Algerian works related to the war in an attempt to shed light on the role of memory (or memories) when history is still (not) being written. Course entirely conducted in French.

Course objectives:
This course is designed to fulfill the following objectives:

1. Familiarize you with the history of France in Algeria and the history of the Algerian War of Independence
2. Introduce you to different types of representations of the Orient (imagery, travel narratives, fiction) that were prevalent in the XIXth century and beginning of the XXth
3. Introduce you to the conflicting discourses that took place in France around the Algerian War between 1954 and 1962
4. Familiarize you with the history of the repressed memory of the Algerian chapter in France and the issues related to the writing of this history
5. Introduce you the multiple and often conflictive memories related to the Franco-Algerian history
6. Frame the debate with Postcolonial theory

Class Policies:
Attendance:
- Class meets once a week: attendance is mandatory. If a student is absent due to an emergency such an illness or death in the family, he/she will be excused only with a written excuse.
- There is nothing such an excused absence. Students are allowed only one absence, after which, their attendance grade will drop by a letter grade for each absence.

Homework:
- If the student is absent for any reason, he/she will be responsible for turning in his/her homework on time. He/she will be responsible also for the material covered in class (Check blackboard, get in touch with friends, email instructor, check syllabus).
- Students are expected to read, view films and complete their assignments for the date indicated prior to coming to class (syllabus / blackboard calendar). Homework should be completed on time. No late homework will be accepted.
- All essays are due on time. Grades will decrease by 5 points for each day papers are late.

Participation:
- Participation is crucial in this class since it is structured around students' input. Students are required to come prepared and to actively participate to debates in class.

Oral Presentation (10%)
Each student will give an individual 20-25 minute class presentation in French on an assigned topic related to an additional film, novel or theoretical reading. Students are encouraged to use visual aids (posters, film clips, power points...) and prepare hand outs.

Students are also encouraged to discuss the presentation with me at least one day before it is scheduled. Oral presentations cannot be rescheduled.
