Dr. Stephen F. Szabo is the executive director of the Transatlantic Academy, a research institution within the German Marshall Foundation. His talk will draw upon his new book entitled Germany, Russia, and the Rise of Geo-Economics, where he analyzes German policy toward Russia, German-Russian relations and Germany’s evolving global economic role and power.

Dr. Szabo previously taught at the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University, the National Defense University, and at the Foreign Service Institute, U.S. Department of State. He has written on German foreign and security policies, generational politics in Europe, and transatlantic security and political relations. He has held fellowships from the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation, The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, and the American Academy in Berlin. Szabo received his Ph.D. from Georgetown University in political science and has a bachelor’s and master’s from the School of International Service, the American University.

This talk is co-sponsored by the Office of International Programs and the Boca Raton Warburg chapter of the American Council on Germany.
