

Peace Stories:

A Celebration of International Education Week

Center for Global Engagement and
The Peace, Justice and
Human Rights (PJHR) Initiative

The Center for Global Engagement and the Peace, Justice and Human Rights (PJHR) Initiative have come together to present a student-led, multi-campus event to engage FAU community members in dialogues focused on peace from international perspectives.

FAU celebrates International Education Week by presenting student "Peace Stories." These stories combine written narrative with art, photography and other media to share personal perspectives on issues of war and peace.

Students will present their experiences to encourage an exchange of views among members of the FAU community about the universal causes and consequences of war and peace, providing an opportunity to learn from one another as we focus on peace-building, both here and abroad.

International Education Week highlights the importance of global understanding, cultural sensitivity and dialogue which can be achieved through education abroad and international exchanges.
