FAU College of Education Hosts ESE Graduate Information Sessions

Florida Atlantic University’s Department of Exceptional Student Education (ESE) will host two information sessions for individuals on the Treasure Coast who are interested in earning a degree in special education. Information sessions are scheduled for Tuesday, October 11, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at Palm Pointe Ed & Research School at Tradition and Saturday, October 15, from 10 a.m. to noon at FAU’s Treasure Coast campus. Individuals interested in graduate studies in exceptional student education can attend either session to learn more about the graduate program.

The master’s degree in exceptional student education is a 36 credit hour program in which students will expand their knowledge of the field of special education. Students in the program complete a number of common courses designed to both broaden knowledge of ESE strategies and promote further professional development. There are seven areas of concentration including gifted education, autism spectrum disorders, behavior analyst and early childhood education. The program also includes a concentration in instructional practices for those individuals who are coming into the program without an undergraduate degree in ESE. Students completing the ESE master’s degree program will be well prepared to work with individuals with various disabilities. Consistent with FAU’s increased focus on expanding the university’s virtual education program, the ESE program offers courses in both the online and face to face formats.
