FAU was named one of “America’s 100 Best College Buys” by the Student Guide. For the fourth year in a row, FAU’s enrollment of degree-seeking students reached an all-time high of over 20,000, with entering freshmen having an average GPA of 3.3.

Nearly $1.2 million in scholarship funding was donated to the FAU Foundation to provide critically important assistance to deserving FAU students.

The four-year, residential Honors College on the John D. MacArthur campus at Jupiter opened to an inaugural class of 79 academically distinguished students whose average grade point average exceeded 3.6. Included in their number were four National Merit Scholars, a Horatio Alger Scholar and three high school valedictorians.

For the fourth year in a row, FAU was named one of “America’s 100 Best College Buys” by the Student Guide.

Academic Excellence

Three faculty members won Fulbright Awards, and a visiting Fulbright Scholar from Poland spent part of the year in residence at FAU. Dr. Harry Kesery of the Dorothy F. Schmidt College of Arts and Letters, Dr. Rosanno Liscio of the College of Nursing, and Dr. Hugh T. Miller of the College of Architecture, were among those named recipients of National Fulbright Scholar Awards, while Polish Fulbright Artist Marek Wawszaliwski was a visiting faculty member in the departments of Communication and Art.

Dr. Y.K. “Mike” Lin, Charles E. Schmidt Eminent Scholar in Engineering, earned the highest professional distinction an engineer can receive when he was elected to membership in the National Academy of Engineering.

Edward Villella, acclaimed dancer and arts educator, joined FAU’s faculty as the Dorothy F. Schmidt Visiting Artist-in-Residence. He is founding artistic director of the Miami City Ballet and a recent recipient of the National Medal of the Arts.

Helen K. Perisson, a registered nurse with strong ties to South Florida’s health care community, endowed the Helen Karpelina Persson Eminent Scholar Chair in Community Caring. This became the second Emeritus Scholar Chair in the College of Nursing.

FAU’s five-year bachelor’s degree program in architecture became one of only two in the last decade to earn initial five-year accreditation from the National Architecture Accrediting Board. FAU now enrolls more than 100 students in the U.S. that have earned the accreditation.

The School of Public Administration received a glowing review and a seven-year accreditation from the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration. Offering bachelor’s, master’s and doctoral degrees, the school enrolls more than 200 students.

The School of Accounting received a major gift that included a multipurpose software program, hardware and technical support to provide student access to the world’s leading student accounting software system. The gift package was put together by Boca Raton-based HostLogic, Inc.

Dr. Ellis Youngkin, professor and graduate program coordinator in the College of Nursing, received the National Organization of Nurse Practitioner Faculties’ award for Outstanding Nurse Practitioner Educator in 1999-2000.

Research Advancements

FAU researchers attracted more than $36 million in external funding during fiscal year 1999-2000, a record high and an impressive increase over the previous year.

A 500 MHz Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Spectrometer, the only one of its kind in South Florida, went into use in the Charles E. Schmidt College of Science. The highly sophisticated research tool, which probes the inner workings of molecules, was purchased with part of a $341,000 challenge grant from the Kress Foundation.

FAU is the first university in South Florida to be awarded the Kress Foundation’s highly-competitive Science Initiative Challenge Grant.

The Internet Institute and the Adams Center for IT Product Management and Entrepreneurship was established as a joint program of the Colleges of Business and Engineering.

Arthur and Mata Jaffe donated a unique rare book collection valued at $352,000 to the FAU Libraries. The stunning 2,200-piece collection, titled “Books as Architectural Objects,” celebrates visual alphabets, art, printing, bookbinding, papermaking, calligraphy and design. Of one of the most significant collections of its kind in the world, the Jaffes’ gift is an extraordinary resource for arts, graphics, design and literature scholars.

Innovative Partnerships

The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation made a $2 million gift to the Joint Center for Environmental and Urban Problems to create The AbacUSA Project, an initiative focused on building sustainable communities through principles of “New Urbanism.” The AbacUSA Project is based on FAU’s Jupiter campus.

FAU and Hebrew College of Brookline, Massachusetts, came together in a cooperative relationship to enhance opportunities in Jewish education and Holocaust studies. The initiative made FAU the first university in South Florida to address the need for continuing professional education for rabbis.

Intellectual Environment

Dedication ceremonies were held for the 135-acre John D. MacArthur campus at Jupiter, and close to 1,800 students began the 1999-2000 academic year on the campus, which is home to upper-division and graduate-level students and the four-year, residential FAU Honors College.

Construction of a presidential home/university reception center on the John D. MacArthur campus was made possible by the generosity of Boca Raton philanthropist Eleanor R. Baldwin. The Eleanor R. Baldwin House will add an exciting new dimension to campus life, providing a distinctive setting for functions of many kinds.

PARTNERSHIPS

The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation announced a plan to enhance cultural resources in northern Palm Beach County through construction of the Hibel Fine Arts Building on the John D. MacArthur campus at Jupiter. The 15,000-square-foot facility will provide classrooms and academic offices for the Honors College and will house the main branch of the Hibel Museum of Art.

Enterprise Development

Corporation of South Florida, a non-profit organization, began managing the new technology Business Incubator in the Florida Atlantic Research and Development Park. With tenant space for up to 28 companies, the Incubator supports the University’s research activities while offering valuable help to emerging technology-based enterprises.

The Joint Center for Environmental and Urban Problems claimed a role as a key player in the Biscayne Bay Partnership Initiative, a public/private effort to ensure effective management of the vast, subtropical estuary.

The University announced an outreach program to visually impaired senior citizens through a powerful partnership with the Mac Volyen Senior Center and Recording for the Blind and Dyslexic, Florida Unit. Funded by a $750,000 gift from the Gladis L. Davis Trust, the gift will be used to build the Gladis L. Davis Pavilion on the Boca Raton campus, where the program will be housed.

Public Service

Faculty members and students in the College of Education brought basic health care, disease prevention and health education to economically disadvantaged children and families through its highly acclaimed Community-Based Nursing Project.
