

Changing Tides and Hemispheric Connections in Caribbean and Latin American Studies

Annual Tri-University Graduate Student Paper Award

POSTING DATE: March 12, 2020

DEADLINE FOR SUBMISSIONS: March 27, 2020, 5:00 p.m.

PAPER LENGTH: 2,000 words / 8 pages

CASH PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED

Florida Atlantic University, Florida International University, and the University of Miami invite graduate and advanced undergraduate students to submit papers of 2,000 words (8 pages) for consideration in the Changing Tides and Hemispheric Connections in Caribbean and Latin American Studies Graduate Student Paper Award Contest. The selection committee welcomes papers on any theme across all disciplines concerning the Caribbean and Latin America, including, but not limited to: history, literature, anthropology, philosophy, cultural studies, sociology, linguistics, film and media studies, business, fine arts, nursing, health sciences, education, and the physical sciences.

Papers will be judged and awarded monetary prizes by the tri-university faculty award committee. The winners will be announced online and by email on or before April 17, 2020.

Submissions must include: 1) Your 2,000-word paper, 2) a 250-word abstract, 3) a short Bio (indicate what degree you are presently seeking), AND the following information: name of the author of the paper, title of the paper, author's area of specialization, email, telephone, and school affiliation.

PLEASE EMAIL SUBMISSIONS TO: triconfsubmissions2020@gmail.com.

ALL SUBMISSIONS MUST BE RECEIVED BY MARCH 27, 2020, 5:00 p.m.

Please note: The 18th Annual Tri-University Graduate Student Conference in Caribbean and Latin American Studies that was scheduled to be hosted by Florida Atlantic University this year has been cancelled due to COVID-19 protocols.