A Brief Organizer's Note

I swear these things only come to you at three in the morning after you've bought the troops Taco Bell to help them through the night's adventures. As I sit here, perched capriciously on the precipice of the abyss—fighting sleep, there are several things that have become clear to me. One, things like this only happen when people are passionate. I am very fortunate that so many of my peers who are passionate enough to stress themselves out for the sake of a one night only, unique engagement. Two, we the students are lucky to have a department that allows us to do crazy things like this project. Thanks Des, Kathryn, and Company. Without you, this wouldn't be possible and we'd be sad. And finally, I'll have been awake for 35 hours minimum once this is over. Yikes. As is the nature of this sort of thing, cross your fin-
