LOUIS TYRRELL, ARTISTIC DIRECTOR &
DOROTHY F. SCHMIDT VISITING EMINENT SCHOLAR IN THE ARTS

THE THREE SISTERS OF WEEHAWKEN

by Deborah Zoe Laufer

Thursday, Oct. 20 – Sunday, Nov. 6

Olga, Masha and Irina have dreamt of returning to their childhood home of Manhattan all their lives. There it lies, gleaming, a mere ferry ride away from their provincial home in Weehawken, New Jersey. Though their sister-in-law Natasha tries valiantly to help them realize their dream with offers of work, tickets, maps, guidebooks, even anti-depressants, old patterns are hard to break – and that 15 minute ferry ride may as well be a mission to Mars. As they remain, decade after decade, stretching into old age, the walls of their world move in tighter and tighter, until it becomes nearly impossible to move at all. Borrowing as much from Beckett as Chekhov, The “Three Sisters of Weehawken” explores the forces that keep us from following our dreams, and begs the question -- how little can one live, and still have lived “a life”?
