

The Center for Teaching and Learning's
Faculty Enhancement Workshop:
Critical Thinking: Strategies you can use.
March 27, 2010

Faculty in every discipline—be it physics, algebra, music, history, the health sciences, accounting, public administration, computer science, Spanish or dance—seek to instill critical thinking skills in their students, but many faculty struggle to find the appropriate pedagogical techniques to achieve this goal. Join us on March 27 and learn strategies used by your colleagues.

Saturday March 27, 2010
9:00-1:00
Boca Raton Campus:
Christine E. Lynn College of Nursing Building (NU 84)

Sign up today at:
<http://www.surveymonkey.com/s/8VZKYKL>
Please register before March 22, 2010

PROGRAM

9:00	Check-in, Continental Breakfast and Calisthenics for the brain!
9:15	Welcoming Remarks
9:25- 9:55	Transforming Good teaching into Scholarship: Strategies you can use Deborah Raines, Director of the Scholarship of Teaching
CONCURRENT SESSIONS
10:00 to 10:40	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Dreaming in Thesis Statements: Using Theoretical Models to Teach Critical Thinking" Susan Love Brown, Professor of Anthropology • Facilitating Skillful Processing of Information to Synthesize New Ones Nwadiuto Esiobu, Associate Professor of Biologic Sciences
10:45 to 11:25	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A Millennial Question: We Think. Are We Critical? Sara Rafferty, Instructor of English & Assistant Director of Writing Center • Analytic Thinking: The Problem and Some Solutions Simon Glynn, Professor of Philosophy
11:30 to 12:10	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Critical Questions about Mainstream vs. Non-Mainstream Dialects Robert Trammell, Professor of Linguistics • Ethical Thinking about Incivility in the Classroom Joy Longo, Assistant Professor of Nursing
12:10	Lunch and Door Prize Drawings

For more information or questions, email:
Dr. Deborah Raines, Director of the Scholarship of teaching at draines@fau.edu

Sign up today at: <http://www.surveymonkey.com/s/8VZKYKL>
Please register before March 22, 2010