Mindfest 2024, Feb. 1-2

Sponsorship Opportunities Center for the Future Mind

Mindfest was launched in 2023 as an annual conference to bring together world leaders in the fields of artificial intelligence, philosophy, psychology and neuroscience to discuss the interaction between mind and machine, and the future of artificial intelligence. Cutting edge speakers such as Stephen Wolfram, Ben Goetzl, and David Chalmers were featured along with other regional and national experts.

Press who attended the inaugural conference included the Miami Herald, Huffington Post, Scientific American, Nautilus, Theories of Everything (“TOE”, a top STEM YouTube channel) and more. In partnership with TOE, many of the conference presentations reached over 300,000 individuals.

During the inaugural conference, topics explored included Eastern perspectives on consciousness, the conscious experiences of nonlinguistic entities, artificial general intelligence, distributed global intelligence, tests for machine consciousness, and virtual reality. Over 500 people attended, including professionals in the tech industry, policymakers, and students.

Mindfest 2024

Conference themes will include the implications of chatbots like GPT4, whether reality is digital, issues in neuroethics, the impact of social media on the brain, and more. We anticipate this year’s conference will be far larger based on outstanding feedback and media coverage received last year. Word is getting out.
