Re: Operations Management Concentration for MBA Program

During the College Graduate Council meeting of April 8, 2005, two changes in the Operations Management Concentration for MBA students were approved. One change was related to three required courses. That change must have been approved by the University Council because it made its way into the university catalog.

The second change is related to a list of possible electives students could take to meet the fourth course requirement for the concentration. The department requests that this list be corrected in the university catalog. The list should include only the two following courses: ISM 6237 (E-Business Development) and MAR 6837 (Developing and Marketing Innovations).
