Proposed Teaching

The percentage of effort for instructional activity in the classroom and/or laboratory resulting in the production of Student Credit Hours reported in the official university files. The percentage of effort is based on the overall assignment and not contact hours. This activity involves instructional preparation, lectures, supervising laboratory work, evaluating student efforts, and conference with and tutoring of students. Variables that may affect the total effort include, but are not limited to, enrollment, use of teaching assistants, multiple sections of the same course, and the amount of preparation required. Directed Independent Studies, where students study a specifically assigned topic on their own and meet regularly with a faculty member to review progress and evaluate achievements, may be reported here as well. In certain situations, effort for Directed Independent Studies, theses, dissertations and Honors capstone courses may be split and reported both here and a percentage under Research, Scholarship and Creative Activity.

Community-Engagement courses may be reported here. Curricular activities that connect students with activities that address community-identified needs through mutually beneficial partnerships that deepen students' academic and civic learning. Examples may include experiential-learning courses such as academic service learning, internships, and educational field experiences.

Undergraduate Research and Inquiry (URI) courses may be reported here. Curricular activities that actively engage undergraduates in the process of research and inquiry through projects/assignments centered on a question or unstructured problem for which no clear answer exists. Examples include courses supported by the OURI curriculum grants program and research intensive (RI) designated courses/capstones as well as supervised research experiences, internships, co-ops or independent study that include research and inquiry activities. As stated above, in certain situations a percentage of the effort may be reported here and a percentage of the effort under Research, Scholarship and Creative Activity.

Here are the categories under teaching. They are preloaded based on Banner information but adjustments can be made if needed.
