About the Archives of Caring in Nursing:

The Christine E Lynn College of Nursing is dedicated to caring: advancing the science, studying its meaning, practicing the art, and living it day-to-day. The Archives of Caring in Nursing has as its mission preserving the history of caring in nursing, inviting the study of caring, advancing caring as an essential domain of nursing knowledge, and creating meaning for the practice of nursing. We are committed to securing the papers of Caring scholars, and developing and maintaining the Archives to provide access to primary sources. On-site use of the materials in the collections is available by appointment.

Marian Turkel Biography

Marian Turkel is a nurse scholar associated with the development and application of caring science, particularly through her longstanding professional relationship with Jean Watson. Her engagement with caring science began during her graduate studies in nursing administration at Florida Atlantic University in the late 1980s. She has remained active in the caring science community through participation in the International Association for Human Caring and work with healthcare organizations implementing theory-guided practice models.

Turkel has been affiliated with the Watson Caring Science Institute since 2007, where she has contributed to educational programs, mentorship, and scholarly initiatives in caring science. She has also held leadership roles in professional nursing practice, including work related to Magnet designation processes in hospital settings. She was inducted as a Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing in 2012 and has participated in national initiatives focused on nursing theory–guided practice. Her scholarly work includes publications and editorial contributions addressing caring science and its application in nursing practice and research.
